Summary

The purpose of this document is to summarize approved uniform wear for AU Health employees required to standardize uniforms as part of the AU Health Uniform Branding Initiative.

The information presented below reflects approved disciplines, their assigned colors, in addition to approved branding, manufacturers, and uniform types.

Discipline Colors

Disciplines approved for standardized uniform wear have been divided into two categories as determined by their assigned uniform types (e.g. Clinical or Professional). For the purposes of the AU Health Uniform Branding Initiative; clinical uniform wear consists of scrub tops, scrub bottoms, scrub jackets, and lab coats, professional uniform wear consists of polo shirts, work shirts, khaki pants, cargo pants, chef wear, blazers, and t-shirts.

Uniform Branding

In support of the AU Health Uniform Branding Initiative, use of the AU Health logo and, in certain circumstances the CHOG non-formal logo, have been approved for use.

In general, the AU Health logo is the primary logo for all branded uniforms. The CHOG non-formal logo¹ has been approved for use in areas of the health system providing dedicated pediatric care. (As of August 15, 2023, the use of embroidered logos are no longer required on clinical/professional uniforms.)

Uniform Manufacturers

Cherokee brand Medical Uniforms has been selected as the manufacturer for clinical uniforms.

Within Cherokee brand Medical Uniforms, the following manufacturing lines will be available to AU Health employees: Workwear Originals, Workwear Core Stretch, Workwear Revolution, and Infinity.

Dickies and Alpha Broder have been selected as the manufacturer for professional uniforms.

Within Alpha Broder, the following manufacturing lines will be available to AU Health employees: Core365, Harriton, and Devon.

Dickies premium fit lines will be available to AU Health employees for khaki and cargo pant requirements.

Job Codes by Discipline

The following section lists approved disciplines, the job codes that comprise them, and their associated approved uniform types.

The information provided in this section is a result of recommendations made through the Uniform Selection Committee and approved through AU Health's Senior Leadership Team.

All information contained in AU Health's Standardized Uniform Employee Guide is reviewed annually.

In the event there are errors or omissions, please contact Ashley Lesley, Director of Employee Relations in Human Resources (alesley@augusta.edu or 706-721-7272) or Noah Rees, Patient Care Services Administration Operations Manager (nrees@augusta.edu or 706-721-8837) to resolve the discrepancy.
